

Let Us Chew Gum in School!

1 Students love to chew tasty gum. Did you know there are many benefits to chewing gum during school? First, it will help students concentrate. It can also improve their memory. Some studies have even shown that scores have gone up for students who chewed gum while taking a test. What an awesome and easy way to help students do their best.

2 Also, chewing gum will help students focus. If students tend to fidget in their seats, chewing gum will help them sit still. As a result, they will be more focused on their assignments. It will also help the students around them stay focused. They won't be distracted by the student squirming around in their seat. This will make everyone in the classroom happier.

3 Chewing sugar-free gum also has many health benefits. When students chew gum, they will have fresh breath. Their classmates and teachers will definitely appreciate this when they are working together in small groups. It will also help whiten students' teeth. Chewing gum can also keep plaque from building up on their teeth. It would be awesome if students could be learning and keeping their teeth healthy all at the same time!

4 Chewing gum during school is a bad idea! It can cause many problems. First, it can be distracting. We all know that students love to blow bubbles while chewing gum. Imagine how hard it would be for the students to focus if they kept hearing bubbles popping. This would make it hard for them to learn new things.

5 Also, chewing gum could make a big mess in the school. Chewed gum could end up on the carpets. It can also be put under desks and chairs. The gum could also end up on the bottom of people's shoes. What a mess! This would create a lot more work for the custodians.

6 Chewing gum can also create problems between students. Not everyone's parents will want to buy their child gum. As a result, students might become jealous if other students are chewing gum. Also, students might choose to share gum with some classmates but not others. Can you imagine how that will make the students who are left out feel? All of this can be avoided. We shouldn't allow students to chew gum during school.
